

Flying "L" Ranching is with Dylan Lares and 2 others at Flying "L" Ranching.

· Follow

June 5 at 11:59 AM · 🌐

Wow!!! Today is the 14th Birthday I've enjoyed here at the ranch! When I showed up that spry wide eyed guy in the first pic, I honestly had a different vision of what my life and purpose was going to be here.

15 years and drogues of experiences later, this Valley and wilderness has forged me into something that's almost hard to put into words.

But I'm honored to say that beyond my proudest assets being married to my sexy bride and two amazing kiddos/adults now, life and purpose has brought us all to a pinnacle place in time.

I've recently founded Flying L Equine Stewardship Society (Canadian Charity) and Friends Of Flying L Ranch (USA Non-Profit) advancing equine welfare and stewardship beyond the fences of this ranch. It's been years in the making.

What that means is we're taking horse care to a different level. So if you have been a follower or supporter and been on this ride with us, particularly if you've donated to help the horses and ranch thrive, your connected and can say your part of this monumental effort. Because your support is what kept us alive, assisting the horses and allowing us the capacity to prove equine medical science. Developing programs and implementing animal care beyond the norm.

We're still doing our thing here at the ranch and hope that via our network, we can develop a full service equine Vet Clinic. While supporting and aiding many other efforts locally and across North America.

Again, it's followers and supporters like you that have literally been the driving force and energy behind all of this. So take some time to reflect with me through this post and enjoy some of the journey. It's yours too and been the method to all our madness.

Today we have many things to celebrate! 🙌❤️

#flyinglranh #flying_l_ranch

#portaltothemajesticandwild

#flyinglranhexclusive See less